WORKING FOR GARD BILL

SEVENTY COUNTY OFFICERS MEET AT THE DENISON HOUSE.

The Effort Will Be to Get the Bill Be fore the House at the Earliest Moment.

A meeting of some seventy of the county ficials from all over the State who are ere to lobby for the Gard bill was held in which they are so deeply interested before on fees and salaries, where, the county officers fear, it is being held up in is to be desired. The county officers say that they want to get their bill before the House and place the members on record for or against it, so that they will know who Of the men at the men at the meeting a large per ent, of them are Democrats and they are caucused to oppose the Gard bill They have been working hard to break the crucus, but so far have been unsuccessful, and they have reached the point where they will lay aside diplomacy and will go after their representatives hammer and tongs. It is not believed that the Gard bill can passed in the House. The opposition is growing daily, in spite of the energetic ef-forts of the large lobby that is working for the bill, and several representatives have idently expressed the opinion that it will be killed summarily as soon as it comes m committee. Chairman Stansbury, of committee, said last night that no report had as yet been agreed upon.

MAJORITY MEMBERS CONSIDER THE SOUTH BEND BILL.

Public Safety in the Governor's Hands.

SENATORS PLEDGED TO SECRECY

ONE OF THEM SAID NEWSPAPERS ALWAYS GOT THE FACTS.

The Measure Has a Slight Political Aspect-Another Caucus May Be Held To-Day.

The Republican members of the Senate held a caucus after adjourning at noon yesterday, the exact nature of which is more or less shrouded in mystery, owing to the strenuous efforts made by some of the senators to keep the caucus proceedings an absolute secret. It was learned in the afternoon, however, that the principal subject under consideration was the bill which provides that the appointment of the Board of Safety of the city of South Bend shall be taken from the mayor of that city and given to the Governor. No definite action was taken on the bill, but it will be discussed at another caucus, which, it is stated, will be held at noon to-day.

One of the most interesting features of divulgence of caucus transactions. the He stated that the newspapers have learned of everything that has been done at the majority of caucuses so far of that sort of thing. So far as he was concerned, he is reported to have said he would not go into caucus again if the proceedings of yesterday's caucus leaked out.

Several other Republican senators felt that caucus secrets should be inviolate and it was agreed nothing should be given out as to the proceedings. Accordingly, when the newspaper reporters sought to learn the nature of the caucus they were politely but firmly repulsed at every turn. Even their closest friends, on whom they relied in such the majority caucus chairman, informed character if all the proceedings were made public property a few hours afterward and he declined to give out any information. SOUTH BEND BILL.

The South Bend bill, which was under consideration at the caucus, is purely a local measure, but it has a political aspect which makes it a matter for party discussion and which may lead to its being made a majority caucus measure. The present mayor of South Bend, Mr. Fogarty, was elected on the Democratic ticket, but he made his campaign as the representative of organized labor and his election has been pointed to as a distinct triumph for the labor element. The members of the Board of Safety whom he appointed are Democrats, but they also represent organized

It is claimed by the men who are urging the passage of the bill that police affairs in South Bend have become sadly demoralized under the new administration. During the street car strike which recently occurred in South Bend the strikers or their sympathizers did very much as they pleased without police interference. There were several small riots, in one of which a man was so badly hurt that it was thought at first he could not recover. Mobs stopped street cars manned by men put in the places of the strikers, pulled the motormen and conductors off and started the cars was not molested until the reward for the he must decline to have the boy vaccinated arrest of the murderer was raised to $1,000, and then the arrest was made by a Chicago officer who is related to one of the South

In other respects, it is claimed, the police have been lax in their duties, and it is said by South Bend people that things have are afraid to venture on the streets after Representative Talcott, of South Bend, however, would not concede that the situation is quite that bad. He said last in the Manual Training High School to evening that there was great dissatisfaction | date from Feb. 23 to fill the vacancy caused among a large part of the better class of citizens, irrespective of party, with the manner in which police affairs were being managed, and that some sort of remedy was being demanded.

POLITICAL ASPECT.

when it is considered that if the appointment of the members of the Board of Safety is taken from the mayor and vested in the Governor, the new members of the board aid to be extremely bitter toward the will probably be Republicans. The Demoemocratic members of the House who crats will oppose the bill on that ground, it is understood, and, if it is passed, it must be by Republican votes, but in that event the cry of "small politics" will be raised in condemnation of the legislative action. It will be charged that the action was taken solely to oust Democratic officials to make room for Republicans.

The majority of the Republican senators. it is said, are as yet altogether undecided as to whether or not the bill should be made a caucus measure. They are, in fact, averse to its enactment unless they are absolutely convinced that there is something wrong in the present management of police affairs in South Bend that can be remedied in no other way. They do not desire to place themselves in a position to be accused of playing "small politics" if they can avoid it, but if they are satisfied the demand for the bill is imperative and that it comes from the better element in South Bend they will probably make it a caucus measure, or at least see that it

Before they take final action, it is said, stating that it had passed unanimously, they will make an investigation of the state of affairs in South Bend, and will endeavor to get their information from unprejudiced sources as well as from representatives of both sides of the conten-

There are two bills pending that make was introduced in the House by Representative Talcott, of St. Joseph county, and the other was introduced in the Senate by Senator Dausman, of Elkhart. The latter bill would have been offered by Senator Burns had he lived.

Painters Against the Bill.

The Painters' and Decorators' Union, No. 47, of Indianapolis, at a meeting held last night adopted resolutions calling on the members of the Marion county delegation in the Legislature to oppose the bill taking the appointment of the Board of Safety of South Bend from the mayor of that city and lodging It in the Governor. W. C. Bobbs, chairman of the Merchants' Association committee, said last night that | with receiving stolen goods. Nowland, a teacher in schol No. 58, was | would be abundantly satisfactory to the as- by boys stealing coal. In the arrest of given a leave of absence from April 1 to sociation. He said the association had in its statement to the committee urged meeting the railroads in the spirit of concilia- and paid them $1.50 a wagon load for the tion because the question was a large one and time should not be wasted in fighting it out in the courts. The association, he said, felt that much more would be gained by an amicable settlement than through arbitrary methods and that the compromise agreed to was a long step in the right direc-

A member of the grade-crossing commission said: "The commission heard Mr. Ingalls utter the promise that if the city dealt with the railroads in a fair way the railroads would deal in the fullest good faith with the city. He condemned the city for bad faith in attempting to get a club at the last minute. The attitude of the commission is simply taking Mr. Ingalls, as the spokesman of the roads, at his word. An arbitrary law we regarded as useless at this stage of the proceedings. A law that brought the roads into dealings with Mr. Ingalls is familiar with the attitude of this commission, that it will recommend no plan that is not permanent and will tolerate no makeshifts; at least he ought to be if he read the resolution we adopted at our first meeting. If we cannot reach permanent, comprehensive settlement then we are fortified with overwhelming moral strength before the next Legislature. If the railroads act in bad faith they can never again plead for good faith in their promises. Personally, I believe the roads will act in good faith, will agree to a fair solution and that they will make immediate provisions for the beginning of the work. That is a great gain for the city, tinct and valuable because of that fact."

TWO SETS OF PLANS. It was understood yesterday that the engineers of the Big Four and Pennsylvania companies had prepared plans for the elimination of the Indianapolis grade crossings and that these plans, although prepared hundreds of miles apart were not widely different. The elimination of Pogue's run is still a debated point among engineers, but all the railroad engineers agree that City Engineer Nelson made a very intelligent and useful plan, with several exceptions which they have sought to rem-

The presentation of the railroad plan is contingent on the passage of the bill in the Legislature. This bill will be called for passage on second reading to-day, and is expected to pass without opposition. It s hoped to have it in the Governor's hands by the first of the week. As it contains an emergency clause it will become effective mediately upon its signature. The purpose of the roads is to then present a full case before the commission and reach a settlement so that the work may be begun. The roads expect to receive a contract that will give them sufficient time in the prosecution of the work to require several years to complete it. This will not make it an onerous burden on them. Mr. Ingalls's statements about vladucts is not regarded as less than a diplomatic hostile to any plan of universal elevation or any plan that will jeopardize the present Union Station.

Same as Mayor Bookwalter's Measure with Two Sections Left Out.

The compromise bill introduced by Representative Muir and now on second reading in the House includes all of the bill prepared for Mayor Bookwalter by Assistant City Attorney Hay and introduced by Mr. Muir last Thursday, except that portion of Section 1 following the enacting clause and all of Section 3.

The omitted portions gave the city the right to require elevation or depression and in case the railroads were hostile after the Council had approved an ordinance they should have the right to appeal to the Circuit or Superior Courts, whose decision should be final and binding on the roads unless the plans were modified Section 1 of the substituted bill provides that the Board of Public Works shall have power to contract with railroads for the raising or lowering of their tracks and incidental reconstruction; the contract is to provide for the payment of all costs of any improvement and its proportionate share that each is to bear subject to limitations in the later sections. This contract must be approved by the Council by ordinance and in case the Council fails to approve either party may appeal to the Circuit or Superior Courts, whose findings shall be final and binding. The second section authorizes the city to agree with the railroad company as to what portion of the work shall be done by each party provided that in no case shall the corporation, for the purpose of purchasing | cost to the city exceed 50 per cent. of the entire cost of the improvement. The city is authorized to apply all monies obtained from the assessment of benefits and damages to its share of the cost.

GIRL'S STORY OF CRUELTY.

It Quickly Melted Away in the Light of the Facts.

A small girl, giving her age as fifteen and dressed in good clothes, walked into the police station last night at 10:30 o'clock and told Sergeant Crane a story of persecution elected from persons not directors. That at the hands of her sister and brother-inlaw. The sergeant, having met with many similar cases, questioned the girl closely regarding her affairs at home. She told a straight-forward story of abuse by her sister, who, she alleged, used bad language to her. The girl said her name was Hallie McWhirt and she came from Kansas City three weeks ago to make her home with her sister, Mrs. Kerr Dunn, at No. 926 Charles Bemis bag works two weeks ago and be cause she was unable to pay her board this week her sister made her leave home. The girl's appearance and her manner of telling her story won the sympathy of the patrolmen about her. She was turned over to Matron Reisner, who took care of her for

Sergeant Crane was so enraged at the supposed action of the girl's relatives on Charles street that he dispatched patrolmen to the house on Charles street. Investigation disclosed the fact that the young girl with the sweet smiles, luxurious auburn hair, demure manners and a tale of cruelty had concocted a story that might only come Dunn told the policemen that the girl had become an incorrigible and would not remain at home. She said the girl left home of her own accord. From what the police-men saw of the girl's home she could not want for anything. She evidently had maligned them in her story to the police. She will be kept at the police station a few days until her case can be more thoroughly
